Phi Kappa Phi Society Gives Corinthians National Honors

At last Friday's Honors Convocation, two years of work produced results—Corinthian Society was accepted as a new chapter of Phi Kappa Phi.

Corinthians will be phased out on the local level by the May merger into the Corinthian Society of Phi Kappa Phi.

Dr. W.C.B. Lambert announced at Monday's meeting of Corinthians that the $50 charter fee had been sent to the national secretary-treasurer. Dr. Lambert is the faculty sponsor of OU's honorary.

Dr. Lambert requested that all current Corinthians should contact either him or president Frank Nocita at once if they want to join Phi Kappa Phi. He emphasized that this would be their only chance to join.

Phi Kappa Phi initiates must pay a $12 fee plus the remainder of their dues to graduation and $1.50 a semester to President Nocita.

Phi Kappa Phi is a national society of general scholarship. To be invited to join Phi Kappa Phi, an undergraduate must have a 3.5 average for a minimum of 73 credit hours.

National membership in the 70-year-old honorary is over 135,000. Nearly 100 major colleges and universities in the United States have Phi Kappa Phi chapters.

Novice Opera Theatre Offers Scenes Tonight

The first offering of the Opera Theatre Workshop, "Scenes from Great Operas," will be staged tonight at 8 p.m.

The program, under the direction of Dr. Robert G. Ruetz, will be held in the Conference Center Auditorium.

New Bill Concerns OU

State Senator Terry Carpenter said Thursday that he is in the process of drawing up a bill to make OU a part of the University of Nebraska system.

Center Okay For Coeds In Slacks

Effective today, women will be allowed to wear slacks on campus—with certain limitations.

The Student Council dress resolution, which was drafted in the middle of January, has been approved by President Leland Traywick, thus making it a University regulation.

The resolution reads: "That women shall be permitted to wear slacks, no jeans, in the Milo Bail Student Center after 6 p.m. on weekdays, on Saturdays, during scheduled vacations and during finals. No slacks will be permitted in classes." The original resolution asked that slacks be allowed in the library too.

At its regular meeting Wednesday, the Council also called for a joint meeting with the campus leadership and scholastic honoraries, as well as representatives from the sororities, fraternities, the Young Democrats and the Young Republicans.

This meeting, to be held next Wednesday afternoon, was called to enlist campus support for a "Man the Polls" drive. The drive, initiated by the Council, will see students at various poll-

38 Journalists Receive Awards Monday Night

World-Herald's Anderson Talks; Hlavacek Cited For Contributions

Thirty-eight GATEWAY and TOMAHAWK staff members were honored Monday night for their contributions to student publications at the University of Omaha. The presentations were made at the eleventh annual Journalism Awards Banquet.

Guest speaker Harold Anderson, President of the World Publishing Company, advised the student journalists that the news media are looking for good versatile reporters—those who can handle a hard news story as well as an interpretive background type of story.

Special recognition went to Dr. Carl W. Helmstadter, Dean of the College of Applied Arts and to Dr. Paul V. Peterson, head of the department of journalism.

Dean Helmstadter was named Honorary GATEWAY editor and received a pewter cup, along with the other publications editors, in recognition of his new position. Dean Helmstadter, who will be retiring indicated earlier in the evening that the Monday night banquet would probably be his last Journalism Awards Banquet.

Dr. Peterson, master of ceremonies at the banquet, was presented with a citation recognizing his ten years of service to the journalism department, by the journalism faculty and the OU Press Club.

The Departmental Citation for contributions to Omaha journalism went to KMTV news analyst John Hlavacek.

GATEWAY editor Mary Cannon made the biggest sweep, gleaming three of the top honors. The 23-year-old English major was named "Outstanding Journalism Student" by a vote of the OU Press Club members.

All roads lead to the Highwaymen! . . . The popular folksinging group will entertain Omaha University students in the Field House tonight at 8 p.m. Activity cards admit student to the event sponsored by the student center program committee.

Inaction Of Student Council Due To Apathetic Campus

Three months have passed since the girls' slacks proposal was introduced at a Student Council meeting. (See story p. 1)

Some students may feel gratified that their proposals are given all this time for study and attention. Others, though, would probably be more gratified if their proposals received a little bit faster action.

It doesn't seem as if the Student Council is really excited about working on student proposals.

On the other hand, students don't seem really excited about the proposals they want passed. If enthusiastic students had pressed the council for action, the proposal would have been acted upon much sooner.

The one month lag before the council sent the proposal to the administration wouldn't have happened if the students interested in the issue showed that they really cared. And there wouldn't have been a two month time lag while the administration studied the proposal, if the people who initiated it showed they were really excited about getting some results.

Letters To The Editor

Four College Defects Listed In Letter By Riesman Reader

Dear Editor

There are four basic problems, which I have encountered on our campus:

1. "There are few inviting places to study or to talk."
2. "Student Publications are either dominated by the school administration or devoted to campus news and trivia." I might add that the administration wields too much power over the GATEWAY, which is a publication that we, the students, write and support financially.
3. The students "have no access to the faculty for other than merely routine matters."

The three problems above have been allowed by the student's —4. "withdrawal of emotional adherence from work," commonly known as "apathy."

All four statements are from an essay by David Riesman, "Where is the College Generation Headed?" (The Atlantic Monthly, CCVII, April '61, 39-45)

Riesman states that our program is not unique. He would have the student body unite and create a better intellectual atmosphere.

One cannot exist in society as a mere pedant. Riesman says in his summation statement, "college is already, not always happily, an aspect of adult life, not simply a playful preparation, and experience there, is no longer compartmentalized as a childish thing. If one is apathetic about one's work, it is hard to prevent this apathy from spreading to other areas."

Thank you,

John Ericsson

Student Thinks Decision Not A Question of Apathy

Miss Rothe is writing in reference to the letter in the March 25 GATEWAY stating that only 11 students were making use of a new bus route provided after a University survey indicated that a number of students wanted one.

So OU apathy has reared its ugly head again. My question is what is apathy?

Is it apathetic to prefer to drive or to get a ride home, rather than take a bus?

Why is it that OU students are considered apathetic just because they do not live and die on the records of the athletic teams? This isn't high school where the student body stopped existing just because the basketball or football team lost a game.

The Pep Squad does not beckon anymore. I would like the choice to decide whether or not I wish to see a game or ride a bus.

Why must we be besieged with harangue after harangue simply because we exercise this right?

Oh, those of you who attend every game and make use of every facility offered—do so, but do so with good grace—let the rest of us be "apathetic" in peace.

Pat Rothe

Students At Work

Two Journalism Students Find Jobs In Vocation, Gain Experience, Skills

By Lynn Agee

Unfortunately and far too frequently, students who seek part time employment are forced to accept jobs that are not within their field of study.

It is not too farfetched to find an engineering student washing dishes at the local inn.

Fortunately, there are some firms interested in helping college people get actual experience.

Some just need their inexpensive help, but the point is — the college student is getting experience in his area of interest.

One fortunate — Marsha Grafton, a journalism major, works part time for radio station KOOO. Marsha schedules commercials, and does any other tasks assigned to her.

The journalism major, since joining KOOO, has written commercials, participated in and experience gained by working in radio is invaluable."

The "stump jumper's" future plans do not necessarily call for radio. Marsha wants to write current affairs for magazines, radio or television but not for newspapers.

One of Marsha's biggest fears is "being stuck on the society page."

Marsha obtained the job with KOOO through Omaha University's placement office.

KMTV Intern

Another fortunate—Bob Olson, a journalism senior at O.U., didn't get his job with KMTV through the placement office, but applied for a journalism internship with the station.

KMTV offers an internship each semester to any interested journalism student who meets their approval. The student receives three credit hours and pay for his efforts.

Bob does about everything as an intern.

Bob said, "The job can entail writing, photography, film edit-

Bob advises the journalism student to take lots of courses in radio and television. "Journalism students should take the radio and television courses offered in the speech department."

"It is a benefit to understand the mechanical end, because a bad understanding of mechanics is a barrier to news," he added.

Olson

"The big benefit for the student at KMTV," says Bob, "is the knowledge gained by working around the best journalists in the Midwest. It is also an advantage to be able to discuss problems with someone never too busy to help."

"It would be a big help if the journalism student could spend at least a week just observing the practical aspects of the news. The student has no idea of what is going on when he steps out of college."

Almost every job has a certain amount of fun and a point of interest. Bob feels editing film can be the most fun and covering news assignments the most interesting.

The biggest problem for the lad from across the river is finding his way around Omaha.

Bob has had experience as a summer vacation reporter for the Council Bluffs Nonpareil and is now photographer for the Gateway.

Among other journalism majors at work in Omaha news media are the following: Television News—Angus Campbell, Duke Schneider, Dennis Waterman, KMTV; Lee Moldinger, Joey Sedlacek, WOW-TV; Loren Schnitzgrund, KETV.

Radio News—Jim Gember and Bob Erzelen, KBON.

Newspaper—Rudy Smith, Omaha World-Herald; Paul Henderson, Rand Witke, Council Bluffs Nonpareil.

Public Relations—Advertising—Patti Mahson, Omaha National Bank; Debbie Pelowski, Lloyd Advertising; Lether Lukas, Nebraska Walther Leagues; Vicki Adam, Barb Brown, Larry Porter, Mardelle Sumner, University of Omaha Office of Information. Bob Erzelen is also employed in public relations for the Omaha Home For Boys.

commercials, has broadcast two 15-minute want ad programs and dealt with the station's public.

The only thing she doesn't like about radio is being on the air. "I'm not used to it," said Marsha, "but the general knowledge ing and reporting. I write the late edition every Saturday night."

The basic idea of an internship is to give experience in a certain field and some time to learn from professional journalists.

UFO Lands At OU?

"Little blue men" invaded an American philosophy class several weeks ago.

The professor started a reality-versus-imagination argument by saying there were little blue men in waste paper baskets at OU. To prove in fact they did not exist, he reached in and pulled out a fistful of air.

He continued the discussion of the "men" at the next lecture. This time he reached in, and to his surprise, pulled out two blue cardboard "men." A clever student had planted the figures before the professor arrived.

The slightly bewildered professor laughed and said, "That's funny."

ROOMMATES REVISITED

This morning's mail brought a letter from a student at a prominent Western university (Princeton). "Dear Sir," he writes. "In a recent column you said it was possible to get along with your roommate if you try hard enough. Well, I'd like to see anyone get along with my roommate! Mervis Trunz (for that is his name) practices the ocarina all night long, keeps an alligator, wears knee-cymbals, and collects airplane tires. I have tried everything I can with Mervis Trunz, but nothing works. I am desperate. (signed) Desperate."

Have you, dear Desperate, really tried everything? Have you, for example, tried a measure so simple, so obvious, that it is easy to overlook? I mean, of course, have you offered to share your Personna® Super Stainless Steel Blades with Mervis Trunz?

To have a friend, dear Desperate, you must be a friend. And what could be more friendly than sharing the bounty of Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades? Who, upon enjoying the luxury of Personna, the nickless, scrapeless, tugless, hackless, scratchless, matchless comfort of Personna, the ease and breeze, the power and glory, the truth and beauty of Personna—who, I say, after such jollies could harden his heart against his neighbor? Nobody, that's who—not even Mervis Trunz—especially not today with the new Personna Super Blade bringing us new highs in speed, comfort, and durability. And here is still a further bonus: Personna is available both in Double Edgestyle and Injector style.

No, dear Desperate, your problem with Mervis Trunz is far from insoluble. In fact, as roommate problems go, it is pretty small potatoes. Compare it, for example, to the classic case of Basil Metabolism and E. Pluribus Ewbank.

Basil and E. Pluribus, roommates at a prominent Eastern university (Oregon) were at an impassable impasse. Basil could study only late at night, and E. Pluribus could not stay awake past nine p.m. If Basil kept the lights on, the room was too bright for E. Pluribus to sleep. If E. Pluribus turned the lights off, the room was too dark for Basil to study. What to do?

Well sir, these two intelligent American kids found an answer. They got a miner's cap for Basil! Thus, he had enough light to study by, and still the room was dark enough for E. Pluribus to sleep.

It must be admitted, however, that this ingenious solution had some unexpected sequelae. Basil got so enchanted with his miner's cap that he switched his major from 18th Century poetry to mining and metallurgy. Shortly after graduation he had what appeared to be a great stroke of luck: while out prospecting, he discovered what is without question the world's largest feldspar mine. This might have made Basil very rich except that nobody, alas, has yet discovered a use for feldspar. Today Basil, a broken man, squeezes out a meagre living as a stalagmite in Ausable Chasm.

Nor has E. Pluribus fared conspicuously better. Once Basil got the miner's cap, E. Pluribus was able to catch up on his long-lost sleep. He woke after nine days, refreshed and vigorous—more vigorous, alas, than he realized. It was the afternoon of the Dean's tea. E. Pluribus stood in line with his classmates, waiting to shake the Dean's hand. At last his turn came, and E. Pluribus, full of strength and health, gave the Dean a firm handshake—so firm, indeed, that all five of the Dean's knuckles were permanently fused.

The Dean sued for a million dollars and, of course, won. Today E. Pluribus, a broken man, is paying off his debt by walking the Dean's cat every afternoon for ten cents an hour.

San Quentin's No. 66836 Casts Shadow of Life

By Mardelle Susman

Like the numbers on old baseball uniforms, number 66836 of San Quentin could conceivably be retired to the prison "hall of fame."

For that is the serial number of Bill Sands (formerly Bill Sewell), a rehabilitated ex-con, now turned solid and successful citizen. "My Shadow Ran Fast" is the name of his autobiography, just out in paperback.

Sands is certainly the honor student of San Quentin and, while his autobiography could boil down to "the places I've been, the things I've done, the people I've seen," it is none the less absorbing.

Sands' life, as he explains it, has been governed by two "breaks."

Tough Break

The first, a "tough break," was being born the only child into a well-respected family which was splitting at the seams. Sands' father, a one-time superior court judge, and his "charming, brilliant" mother were divorced when the boy was 13.

Since neither seemed to care with whom he stayed, he decided no one loved him.

The second "break" was meeting Warden Clinton Duffy after he arrived in San Quentin. By this time, he had committed a service station robbery, been admitted to a reformatory, tangled with the inmates and, upon his release, had gone on a robbery spree which netted him a sentence in San Quentin.

Eye-opening

His description of San Quentin is interesting and eye-opening. Sands' vocabulary became enriched, not only by words of the usual four-letter variety, but by a language apart.

Among jargon encountered in prison were such words as "John Law" for police, "the joint" for prison, "wearing a turban" for a bandaged head received as a result of a prison melee and "Square John" in reference to good citizens.

After several battles in the Jute Mill, where prisoners worked at making rope, Sands ended up in solitary confinement and in the hands of Warden Duffy. Duffy gave him a choice—get in deeper or get out altogether.

Study in university extension courses convinced him the "outside" was worth working for. As a start toward getting there, Sands was given a typing job in the prison and there he met Caryl Chessman, a man whom he described as brilliant with a penchant for crime Sands could not understand. (Sands does not believe Chessman guilty of the sex crimes which eventually sent him to the gas chamber.)

Sands began doing additional things for the prison. He, with the help of Duffy, inaugurated recreational events, plus a radio interview program with the Warden. These activities caused the parole board to look favorably upon Sands, who was released in 1943.

From this point onward, the story does not become bogged down, but Sands' writing skills still aren't equal to the task. For, from the time he joined the Merchant Marines, his shadow didn't just run fast—it flew!

A reader gets tired blood from this adventure-per-page form of writing.

In a dizzying series of adventures, Sands swam through shark-infested waters, tangled with a Merchant Marine version of Captain Bligh, rested up in Calcutta, organized a swimming team in India and served as a construction clerk in Arabia.

Later, he headed an airline in Lima, Peru, opened a Los Angeles dance studio, hunted diamonds in Venezuela and became a night club entertainer and race driver.

He somehow managed to find time to marry and, as a family man, tried to institute a new business venture which bombed when his ex-con background was revealed.

At this point, Sands made a big decision—to go back to prison.

However, he went back as a rehabilitation specialist and has since spent his time speaking at prisons throughout the country.

The book has at least one saving grace and that is, while Sands tells of a lesson well-learned, he doesn't preach.

And, as life gets more complicated, it is easy to admire, if not envy, a man who was given the chance to decide his own destiny.

Cheering Squad To Hold Tryouts, Practice Session

Tryouts for nine OU cheerleading positions will be held May 16 at 3:30 p.m. in the OU stadium.

Any coed who is a full-time student and is returning to school next year may try out.

Full-time men students returning next year are eligible for men's cheerleading positions.

Cheerleaders presently on the squad will hold practices for students to teach them the cheers and explain the procedures.

The practices will be held April 26 and May 4 at 3:30 p.m. in the Women's Quonset Hut.

"Cheerleaders on the squad now must try out again for next year's squad," Kristy Wolff, cheerleader captain said.

"Only three cheerleaders are returning to school, so the opportunity for making the squad is great," she said.

The cheerleaders will be chosen by a panel of judges from the Omaha area.

Kathy Dayton of Alpha Xi Delta turned out to be the homebody and won first prize in the pie baking contest. Bill Jansen, Sigma Phi Epsilon, stuffed the most pie in his belly, winning the pie-eating contest. Tau Kappa Epsilon won the pie relay.

Chi Omega pledges once again out-smarted the active chapter with a successful skip Wednesday.

Unfortunately for captives Linda Shum and former pledge trainer Patti Matson, the actives did not find the pledges at their hideaway, the Holiday Inn.

Linda and Patti were returned to their sisters at eleven o'clock, unharmed but displaying new hairdos styled with salad oil (Italian) and shaving cream.

The educational committee will sponsor a speaker at the Sunday evening meeting at 7 p.m. in St. Margaret Mary's church basement.

Theta Chi's presented Sheila Lazerson with a silver tray and the 1966 Dream Girl title at their dinner dance Saturday. The 19-year-old elementary education major is lavaliered to pledge trainer Kenn Calvert.

Independence Excels Over Poor Food, Green Laundry

by Dianne Johnson

OU students living in apartments apparently aren't as blissfully happy as others expect them to be.

Students asked about the desirability of leaving home and moving into an apartment expressed a "grass is greener" philosophy. Those who lived at home usually said they would prefer to live in an apartment—and those who live in apartments generally would have preferred to live at home.

The most popular reason given for voluntarily living at home was "It's cheaper." Others liked the fact that their mother did their cooking and laundry.

Senior Lloyd Cardwell summed it up by saying that "Most college students don't have time to study, work and also do their own cooking and housework."

One girl simply said she wasn't leaving home until she could afford her own stereo and color TV.

Money Restricts

Although most students said they could not leave home because of time and money restrictions, many of them admitted they wanted to. Junior Cheryl Plymate said, "When you reach a certain age you want to be independent. If you live at home, you must be dependent and conflicts arise. College makes people dependent on their parents for too long a time."

Those who do live in apartments claim it's not as romantic and exciting as it's supposed to be. Most of them live alone because of necessity.

Their biggest complaint was "It really costs you." Men complained most about having to do their own cooking and laundry. Junior Bruce Dickenson said he didn't mind the cooking because he had managed a cafeteria for a year, but the laundry was "something else." "Once a green sweatshirt was mistakenly washed with my white things and all my underwear turned green," he said.

Loneliness A Factor

Bruce also admitted that he gets lonely. "It's horrible being alone so much. But if you have big parties, you're asking for trouble."

Several students said that landlords try to take advantage of young renters. They charge excessive rent and try to make you pay for damages when you move out, they claimed.

One of the people who admitted being happy living in an apartment is senior Priscilla Wilkins. The expense is saving Priscilla money. Since her parents live in Bellevue she would have to pay non-resident tuition if she were living at home. "It's less expensive to establish residence and live in an apartment," she explained.

It's not very glamorous, Priscilla said, but "I'm too busy to be lonely."

She added she enjoys being able to plan her time and not have to worry about distractions.

However, the attractive coed has had her problems too. "It took me a while to get used to the pigeons around the house," she laughed.

Delta Sigma Pi Announces Loshbaugh As 1966 Queen

Cheryl Loshbaugh was named Rose Queen of Delta Sigma Pi business fraternity Saturday night. She was honored at the organization's annual dinner dance.

Cheryl, a retail management major, is treasurer of Phi Chi Theta (women's business honorary) and is currently president of the Retail Management club.

Sparetime is spent on a part-time job at a local department store and planning an August wedding to Barry Halla, also an OU student.

The attractive junior maintains a 2.4 accumulative grade average. She holds an Associated Retailers scholarship and is a 1963 graduate of Westside high school.

Other candidates for the honor were Priscilla Wilkins, Margaret Muldoon, Delores Hurlburt and Nancy Stevenson.

Waokiya, ODK Encourage Songs From Boys, Girls, Combinations

Competition songs for the Spring Sing will be available April 25-29 in Mrs. Stanley's office, Student Center, rm. 250. The sing is May 18.

Any group of student may compete this year, and Waokiya is encouraging independent students as well as greek groups to enter. Members of the competition ing groups must number at least 12 people and not exceed 24. A five dollar registration fee is required.

A new category in the sing this year is the addition of a mixed group's trophy. In the past competition has been limited to only men's and women's groups.

The Spring Sing is sponsored by Waokiya and Omicron Delta Kappa honoraries. New members of each group are tapped after the singing.

Priscilla Wilkins, Livi Bergman and Jim Kaspar are making arrangements for the event. It will be held in the student center ballroom.

Students Will Mix On Tennis Courts

OU students are invited to a dance Sunday night on a tennis court.

The Omaha Intercollegiate Council will sponsor an informal mixer from 7:30-11:30 p.m. on the tennis courts at Duschene College.

Admission is 50 cents per person and open to all college students. Stags are welcome.

The Jolly Green Giants combo will play.

Proceeds from the event will go to the Omaha Collegiate Council and will be used in a later civic work.

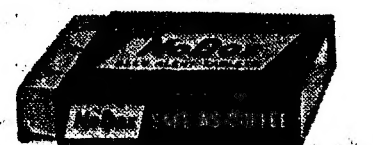

Weather may force a change in plans. For last minute information on the event, OU students may contact council representatives John Berkheimer or Rich Tompsett, currently president of the organization.

Triangular Meet At OU Cancelled Because Of Unfavorable Weather

The University of Omaha's track team was forced to cancel their Tuesday engagement with Doane and Morningside Colleges on the OU track because of wet grounds.

If the weather is favorable Tuesday, April 26, they will travel to Vermillion, South Dakota, where they will compete against the South Dakota University track team.

Coach Cardwell said he does not plan to take any one to the Kansas Relay today and tomorrow.

OU's triple threat, Ken Gould, has an arthritic knee injury and a cold thus he isn't able to compete in the Kansas Relays and in the meet with South Dakota.

Singleton Swishes

In a triangular at home April 16, the track team had an off day with the exception of Sam (Swish) Singleton.

Sam broke the eight year-old out-door high jump record established by Art Breakfield in 1958.

Sam's record jump was an astounding 6'8".

Freshman Clyde Cogelia won the triple jump and broad jump while teammate Gary Power swept the hurdle events.

Ken Gould did not compete in the meet, which was won by Doane with 70, against Wesleyan's 68 and OU's 42 points

Quarterback Glimpses

With spring football workouts a week old, pigskin coach Al Caniglia has his eye on four quarterback candidates.

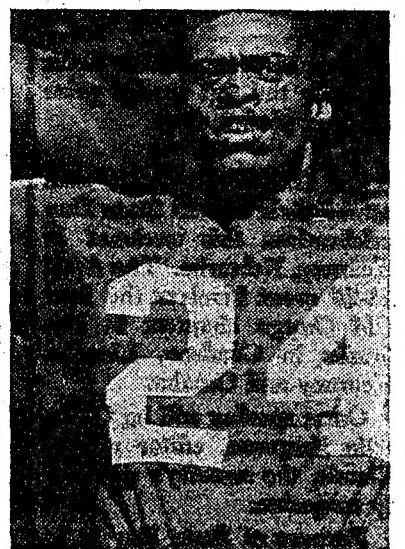

Marlin Briscoe

Heading the list is All-CIC quarterback Marlin Briscoe from Omaha South. Last year as a junior the magician established himself as one of the better quarterbacks in the nation. He gained 2181 total yards to rank fourth in the nation in the NCAA college division. He was fifth in total offense on NAIA charts after picking up over 1300 total yards.

Other honors include membership on the Lincoln Journal and Star All-Nebraska college team, honorable mention—Little All-American. His teammates also chose him outstanding back.

Magic Marlin set three individual school records last year: his passing of 1668 yards, 18 touchdown passes and 2181 total offensive yards.

He's a natural choice for All-American honors next season.

Low Garrison

Nicknamed the "flea," earned his monogram primarily as a defensive back. The little guy demonstrated alertness and good speed.

Last year he showed he could move the ball. Briscoe was shaken up in the Eastern New Mexico game and Garrison took over and sparked the Indians to a touchdown drive. He also engineered a touchdown drive against Emporia State.

His greatest assets are his great arm and quickness. Last season he completed three passes for 70 yards.

Garrison will see most of his action as a defensive safety. He's a two-year letterman and will be a junior. Not out for spring drills; he's playing on OU's baseball team.

Omaha U Quarterback Candidates

| | Ht. | Wt. | Home |
|-------------------|------|-----|---------------|
| Marlin Briscoe | 5-10 | 174 | Omaha (South) |
| Bill Haas* | 6-3 | 200 | Ralston |
| Low Garrison | 5-8 | 160 | Omaha (Tech) |
| Ray Shaw | 5-11 | 175 | Omaha (South) |

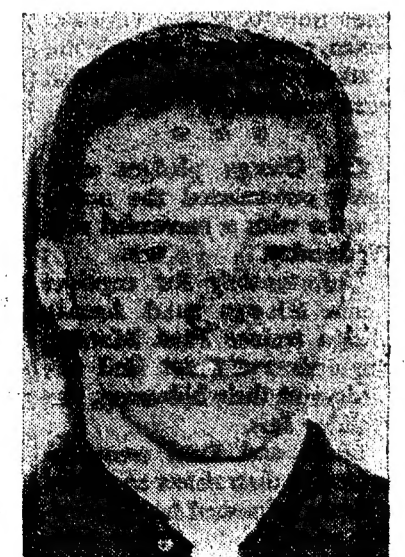

Bill Haas

Haas started out last year as third-string quarterback. After the opener with Idaho State, he realized he would see little action behind Briscoe. He then asked Caniglia for a chance at split end. With less than a week of practice, he earned the job.

The versatile athlete caught 17 passes for 257 yards, averaging 15.1 and developed into an excellent receiver. Not particularly fast, he has the ability to get open.

Slated for end duty again, as a quarterback he could provide much needed insurance.

Ray Shaw

Shaw is a transfer from Doane and will add depth to the quarterback position. He hasn't been tested yet but appears to throw the ball well.

This will be a learning year for him. His potential will be known more after spring practice.

Art Works Auctioned

Over 300 pieces of artwork will be auctioned May 1 in the Student Center.

University of Omaha art students will put their paintings, water colors, ceramics, sculpture and other artifacts up for bid.

Indian's Baseballers On Warpath To Massacre Wayne After Rainout

Virgil Yelkin's baseball team will be on the road tomorrow for a double-header with Wayne State at 2 p.m.

Wayne, a constant power in Nebraska baseball, is expected to give the Omahans a tough go on their home field.

Tuesday, Omaha will return home for their night opener against Creighton University. The game is scheduled for Rosenblatt Stadium at 7:30.

OU's original night opener with Drake University slated for before May 4 CIC Tournament are two games with Creighton.

Ken McEwen and freshman Al Zimmerman are the only pitchers that have seen enough action thus far. McEwen has 22 innings and Zimmerman 16. McEwen and Zimmerman are slated against Wayne tomorrow.

Yelkin was hoping to work veterans Jim Butler, Larry Wood and rookie Jack Holder last night against Drake. Holder was instrumental at the Phillips Tournament but has still only completed five innings.

Junior lefthander Wood has compiled a 1-1 record after ab-merman was next with a 1.73.

Al has two wins after both he and McEwen were credited with wins at Kansas City. McEwen's win was 5-1 and Zimmerman's was 3-2.

Zimmerman refused to let two first inning runs shake him as he came out the winner against Rockhurst last Saturday, 3 to 2. Rockhurst's Joe McLinley walked after teammate John Sparks had doubled.

Shaky support by OU sent the runners across the plate. An error accounted for one run and an unsuccessful run down attempt pushed the other across. Rockhurst missed a squeeze play but in the pickle a bad throw hit the runner.

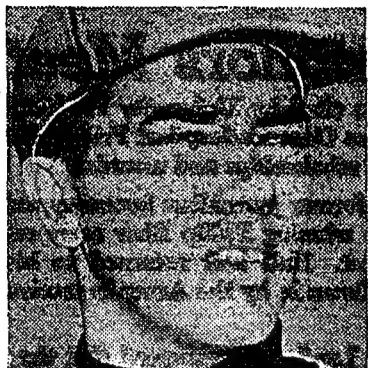

Freshman Bill Myers of Omaha tied the game in the fifth with a single that drove in Joe Berenis and Bobby Davis. Berenis had doubled and Davis had walked.

In the seventh with the score tied, Davis opened with a single and gained second on a passed ball. Harold Lenz turned hero once again with the game winning single that scored Davis.

Ken McEwen, in winning his third game, saw Rockhurst tag him for half of their four hits in the sixth inning. The hits were good enough for a Rockhurst run.

In the top of the seventh, McEwen led off with a single and was sacrificed by Bob Davis. It was Myers once again as he singled McEwen home to knot the score.

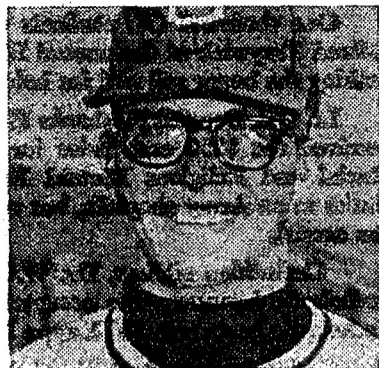

It took Omaha until the ninth to break the tie. McEwen pro-

Holder

Wednesday was postponed because of wet grounds and chilly forecasts. There were hopes of playing the game last night if playing conditions warranted.

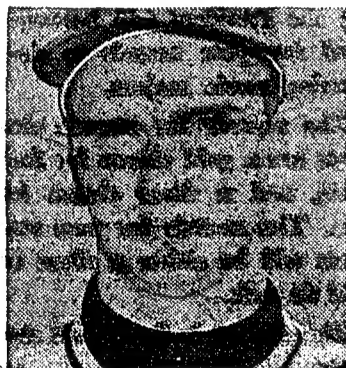

Coach Yelkin's main concern in making up the games is giving his pitching staff the experience needed when tournament time rolls around. Yelkin is hoping to pick up a couple games next week if this week's contests are canceled. The only games scheduled now sorbing the only loss for the team at the Phillips Tournament. Another lefthander, Irv Rehder has seen limited action but is expected to get his chance soon. Larry Carlson is the other rookies that is awaiting action.

McEwen with a record of 3-0 held the lowest earned run average for the squad after eight games with a .409. Zim-vided the lead run after he walked. A combination of walks, errors and hits tallied for the final 5-1 score.

It could be worse, but a .260 team batting average for OU is good enough considering the number of games that they have played thus far.

Pitcher Ken McEwen leads all hitters after eight games with a .667 batting average. McEwen has one home run and three runs batted in. Herb Johnson follows McEwen in the hitting department with a solid .500.

Other top hitters include Harold Lenz, .385; Bob Davis, .375; Al Zimmerman, .364 and Lon Bernth with a .294. Dale Lortz, Bill Myers, Jim Collin, Joe Berenis and Rich Vacek follow with above .200 averages.

Collin leads the runs batted in category with eight. Lenz and Myers follow with six and five respectively.

On a comparative basis, the opponents are hitting at only a .112 clip. This must say something for OU pitching or it says not too much for opponents' hitting.

What A Score . . . Bill Olsen admires his 300 score.

Olson Changes Grip; Rolls '300' Game And 742 Series

by Dave Decker

"I didn't get nervous until the 11th frame," recalled Bill Olson after rolling the ultimate score in bowling, a 300-game.

Olson finished his bowling day at the West Lanes with a 742 series in Omaha U's Intramural Bowling League.

Olson said he changed over to a different grip after watching Pro-Bowler Bob Strampe on television. "I only practiced two days with the new grip," Olson commented. He said it played a big part in his game.

Until he rolled a perfect game his previous high game was 267 in league play and 279 on his own time.

NAIA Bowler 'Serious'

He has been on the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics and Association of College Union Championship teams. The ACUC match was held during Christmas vacation and included 16 teams.

Olson, who has been bowling "seriously" for five years, said he is considering turning professional in about four years just to see if he can make it.

However, he said, "Time and money play a big part in getting on the professional side of bowling."

Besides maintaining junior standing and an accumulative grade average of 3.00, he still finds time to participate in intramural bowling, basketball, golf, track and softball, and was a member of the varsity basketball team for two years.

He is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon social fraternity, Kappa Delta Pi, educational honorary; and belongs to the Student Education Association and Young Republicans.

The Madwoman's at It Again . . . (l to r) Dick Jacobs, Michelle Vaughn and Pat Bunz rehearse for the upcoming "Madwoman of Chaillot" production.

Madwoman Of Chaillot Has Wisdom, Hilarious Comedy

By John Rheinfrank

Hilarious, fantastic, ridiculous, enchanting, rib-tickling, touching, thought-provoking, delightful, heartwarming and riotous Madwoman of Chaillot will be presented next week.

For a play that satisfies, secure your tickets at the University box office Monday through Friday between 9:00 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. in the Ad Building.

The Madwoman of Chaillot, directed by Dr. E. L. Clark, will be presented by the University Theater Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings next week. Admission is free with activity cards.

The play is set in the twilight zone of the not-quite-true melodramatic theater. Two of the main characters of the play are the Countess, played by Michele Vaughn, and David Strongin portrays the ragpicker.

The countess, who is the madwoman, is seemingly insane, and lives in her past when the world was simple, and people were not concerned with wicked plots to find oil in the heart of Paris.

The ragpicker represents the common man of the period, and adds common sense and communication to the play.

In a court scene, the ragpicker, who is the opposite of the money hunters, represents the wicked, wealthy people of the city of Paris.

This amazingly funny scene shows the climax of the comedy, and adds human interests and simple life.

Other characters of the play symbolize the money hunters of the world searching for an oil well somewhere in Paris. The madwoman plots against them, and wins for her cause.

The Council also reminds eligible voters to register by the deadline of April 29.

—Appointed Bob Lane to the Board of Student Publications. He replaces another student dropped because of a lack of attendance.

—Approved the constitution of the OU Press Club.

—Took no further action on last week's motion for a scholarship fund. This resolution, introduced by member Pat Karre, provides for a $250 scholarship to be presented to the student chosen as the summer representative of the Experiment in International Living Program.

Last week the motion was tabled to allow Dean Donald Pflasterer to look into possible methods of financing the scholarship. One of the methods presented would take the money out of the Student Activities fund, paid for by each full-time student on campus. Because Dean Pflasterer was out of town Wednesday, the Council postponed further discussion of the motion until next week.

Band Concert To Be Monday

The annual President's Band Concert will be held Monday at 8 p.m. in the Student Center ballroom.

The concert is a tradition established by many universities throughout the country. It will consist of many selections, including two works of OU students.

Jim Sheppard's composition, "Allegro for Brass," will be played by the band. Jim is a music major in brass, and his father is first trumpet for the Omaha Symphony Orchestra.

The second composition is Mrs. Virginia Shiel's "Trittico for Band." The "Trittico" includes three movements, and the band will play the third movement. Mrs. Shiel is also a music major.

Other parts and selections include a wide range of music compositions. The band will present overtures, marches, selections from Walt Disney's "Mary Poppins" and other selections.

President Leland Traywick will present the annual honors to band members. One award is the presentation to the Bandsman of the Year, which is an elected honor by the band members for the bandsman they feel has contributed the most to the band department.

The other awards presented by the President will be two- and four-year awards to deserving music majors.

The awards for women students are a gold charm for four years, and a silver charm for two. The awards for men students will be either a silver or gold tie tack.

The concert is free to all students.

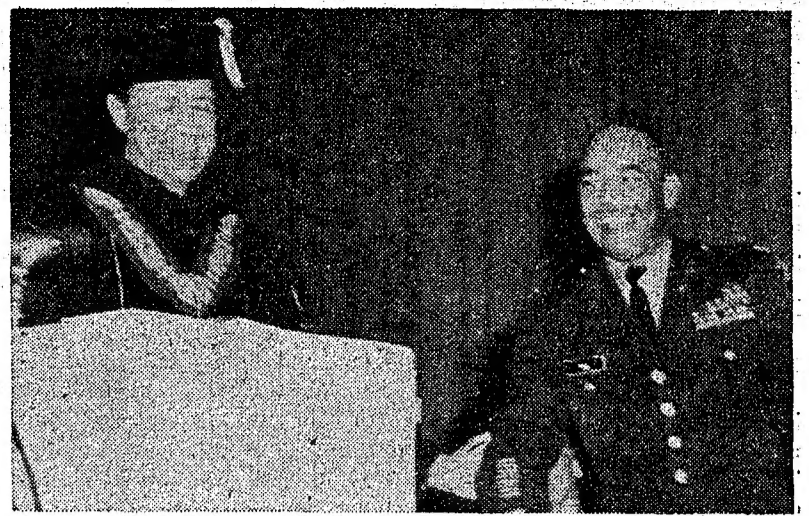

SABRES Travel To Boulder Meet

The University of Omaha SABRE Drill Team will travel to Boulder, Colo., for the annual Invitation Drill Meet Saturday.

Approximately 60 teams will compete for trophies in various divisions. The division SABRES will compete in includes nine of the area's top drill teams.

The "A" Flight, or the marching unit, consists of sixteen men and includes nine members of "B" Flight. The team will be accompanied by Commander Bill Michalenko, Capt. R. W. Seinwill, Sgt. Charles Larsen and Sgt. Don Boutin.

In last year's competition, the SABRES placed second under the command of William Applegate, now an Air Force 2nd Lieutenant.

Good Job . . . OU president Leland Traywick congratulates Lt. Col. Douglas Hall on winning the Philip Sher Essay Contest Award.

1000 Cited At Honors Meet

One thousand OU students were cited by University President Leland Traywick at the annual Honors Convocation, last Friday, for making the honor roll and for holding scholarships and awards.

Lt. Col. Douglas Fairbanks Hall, former journalism bootstrapper, received the $250 cash prize for his winning Philip Sher essay on Racial and Religious Mutual Respect. Hall had returned to his duties as an Army chaplain, but was flown in by the Army to receive the award.

Corinthian advisor, Dr. W.C.B. Lambert, announced that the scholastic honorary was accepted for affiliation with the national scholastic honorary, Phi Kappa Phi.

Corinthian president, Frank Nocita, presented Dr. Traywick with two books for the library.

B. F. Skinner, Harvard University psychologist and OU's Distinguished Visiting Professor, addressed the assembled students and faculty on "Utopia Now?"

Joslyn Awards Received By Omaha U's Art Instructors

Following the successful trend of O.U. art instructors for personal recognition, Peter Hill and Sidney Buchanan recently won awards at Joslyn Art Museum's Ninth Midwest Biennial.

Tracy Atkinson, director of the Milwaukee Art Center and a juror for the Biennial, commented, "My own impressions regarding the importance and interest of (this) show are formed on the basis of the number of artists I find working in new, very personal directions, which evidence the kind of outstanding creative imaginations we are all seeking to discover."

"I was delighted to find several artists in the show very solidly within this category, artists whose work I would like to see more of," he added.

Mr. Hill paints in a hard-edge style he terms "concrete expressionism" and won the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company Merit Award for "Octagon I," oil.

"Isolde," a welded steel by Mr. Buchanan, won the E. John Brandeis Purchase Award of $500. Students at O.U. had the opportunity to view this sculpture during the Faculty Art Show several weeks ago.

A total of 151 forms of art including 99 paintings and 22 sculptures represented 135 artists competing from a ten-state area.

The exhibit continues at Joslyn through May 8.
